

Each classroom has an Investors Board. The children have set their own own targets to work on. This target can be anything ranging from riding their bike without stabilizers or moving up a colour band in their reading. It is then up to the children to let the teachers in their class know when they feel that they have met their targets. Their achievement is then celebrated in class and then a new target is set.